

Operational Risk loss news – direct to your desktop

ORX News is an industry-leading provider of publicly reported operational risk loss data events from around the world. This service provides detailed and timely coverage of operational risk loss events in the financial services industry, including the banking, insurance and asset management sectors.

We work by identifying relevant stories as they appear in the news, so you can be sure you have up-to-date risk data that is expertly organised.

Our team of researchers, which collectively speaks seven major languages, are dedicated to providing subscribers with the latest operational risk loss events from around the globe.

The loss events are summarised in a clear and concise way, with a focus on the operational risk aspects of the story.

Each event is categorised using the industry standard ORX Operational Risk Reporting Standards, which allows you to easily organise, analyse and compare data as a standalone service or with other ORX services you have.

The ORX News database has more than
