Managing risk together

ORX News

At ORX, we understand that effective operational risk management relies on having access to deeper insights behind the data. That's why we created ORX News.

How it works

Speedy global media scanning

ORX News has a team of specialist researchers who speak nine languages collectively. They seek out loss events from the global financial sector, which you are then able to access on our platform within 72 hours (24 hours for the headline).

A financial-specific service

We focus on banking, insurance and asset management events that are relevant to you. When the team finds a financial-specific loss event in the news, they write a summary piece which provides you with all of the key details from an operational risk perspective, in addition to links for each of the source articles.

Easy searching & reporting

Our sophisticated database categorises all events so that you can do advanced searches for them easily. You can filter loss events by category, including business line and event type, or you can search by keyword. You can also export reports (to CSV, XLSX or PDF) on how many of each type there has been over a specific period.

Customised to your interests

You have the ability to save filters and set your own notifications. Decide yourself what kind of events you want to be notified about (with numerous filters to choose from), whether to receive email alerts, and how often. Emails alerting you to matching loss events can be immediate, daily or on a weekly basis.

Free Deep Dives

If there's a news story that you're particularly interested in, you can commission a longer "Deep Dive" piece on that loss event. You can request up to three Deep Dives every year. In addition, you can also access an extensive library of over 90 existing Deep Dives.

More cyber events

Since 2018, ORX News has captured high-impact cyber events at firms outside the financial services sector to provide you with even more insight into this high priority risk.

Visualising the range of losses on our Newsmap

The Newsmap provides a visualisation of the ORX News data. Showing the 1,000 largest losses in the database, the map provides you with the range of risks your business might face to allow for better preparation.
